NATIONAL PARKS AND WILDLIFE ACT 1974

Kings Tableland Aboriginal Place

IN pursuance of the powers vested in me under section 84 of the National Parks and Wildlife Act 1974, I, the Minister for the Environment, do, by this my order, declare such of the lands described hereunder as an Aboriginal Place. The place shall be known as Kings Tableland Aboriginal Place.

It is my opinion that this place is or was of special significance to Aboriginal culture. The values for which the Aboriginal Place is significant to Aboriginal culture includes, but is not limited to it containing a sandstone rock platform with extensive grinding and other grooves, a shelter with rock art that has been recorded as being the oldest Aboriginal site in the Blue Mountains region and containing unique vertically engraved depictions of kangaroo and bird tracks. It also provides the Gundungurra peoples a traditional and historical connection to the Blue Mountains area as a camping and meeting place where connections with neighbouring Aboriginal groups travelling through their Country and along the traditional walking tracks (now known as the Great Western Highway and the Ingar Fire Trail) occurred. The Kings Tableland was historically used as a camping site by Aboriginal residents of the Burragorang Valley Aboriginal camp who would walk to Wentworth Falls and Katoomba for employment purposes until the early 1900s.

Activities which might harm or desecrate this Aboriginal Place include, but are not limited to, the following: the erection of a building in the area; the carrying out of a work in, on or under the area; the subdivision of the area; and the clearing of native vegetation in the area.

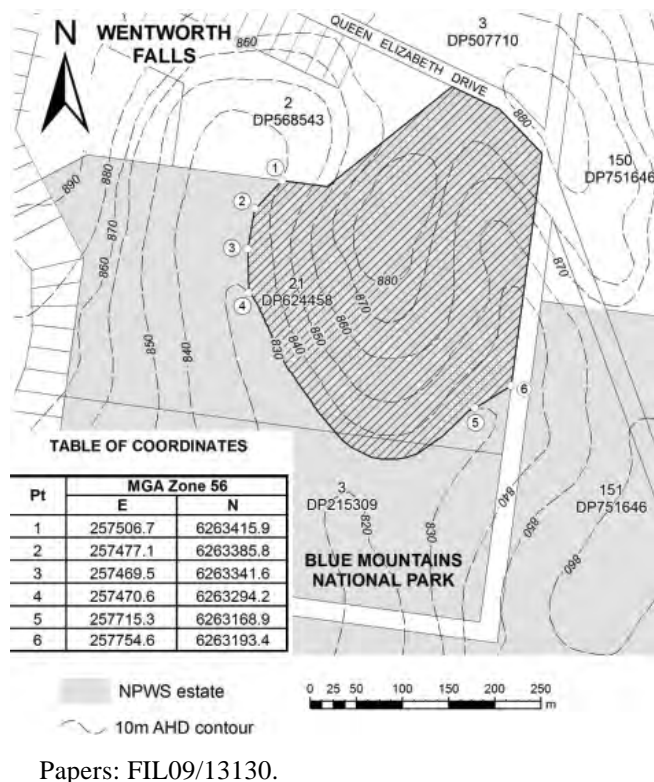

Should any activities that may cause harm (harm includes destroy, deface or damage) to this Aboriginal Place be contemplated, consent should be sought from the Director General of the Department of Premier and Cabinet. Activities or works for the conservation or protection of the Aboriginal Place that are carried out by an officer of the Office of Environment and Heritage, or under the direction of such an officer, in accord with section 87A (a) of the Act, may be exempt.
